How is the league setup?

SOYFAI consists of two (2) divisions. The divisions are setup using similar parameters as the OHSAA uses for high school football. The North Division is comprised of larger communities, while the South division is comprised of smaller communities. All organizations play each organization during the regular season, however non-division games have no bearing on whether or not a team makes the playoffs. Each division has separate playoffs, therefore non-division games are irrelevant for playoff seeding. When a team wins a division games they receive three (3) points. At the end of the regular season the team with the highest points of course finishes in 1st place, and so on. Teams are seeded by how they finish for the playoffs. The #1 seed plays the #4 seed, while the #2 and #3 seeds play. In the event teams tie with points, a Texas tie-breaker is held on November 1st to determine who finishes where and who is seeded where.

Where does Forest Hills stand as of week #4?

- 6 year old Warriors are tied for last place with zero (0) points, however they have three (3) division games remaining.
